Production of

Lulu

By FRANK WEDEKIND,
adapted by PETER BARNES

One of the great plays of the turn of the century. Banned for years. Disturbing and extraordinary.

Lulu might be innocent. She might be. But, then, are children innocent? Her life is like a gigantic party that spills into all rooms of an enormous house. Here's the room with a man painting her portrait, here's a bedroom, here's the room where her husband gets shot, where she's arrested. Here's a fascinating collection of people gambling with other people's money. Here's the tragic countess who is in love with Lulu, sitting alone in a drawing room. Here's the end in a hovel in London. Here's Jack the Ripper.

Here's an astonishing theatrical experience. Something that certainly doesn't come along very often.

A Broad Education Versus The Race to University

BY DOUGLAS J. CAMPBELL
Headmaster

I am writing this in the depths of winter and at a time when one's perspective is perhaps less than balanced. That may account for my somewhat feisty mood.

Let me explain. It is the time of year when students in the senior grades are in the process of selecting courses for next year. As the Academics and Guidance offices meet with each grade and explain the options available, I am concerned with what I can only describe as the "race to graduation" that seems to be paramount in many student's minds. It is hardly a new problem, nor one which will disappear overnight, but it is one which all of us need to address.

From the earliest days, Ridley has espoused the belief that a broad-based approach to all phases of life (and academics in particular) is the hallmark of excellence in adolescent education. It is the fact which has allowed Ridley to attract and retain a superior faculty who share this common vision. During these key years of secondary education, much of an individual's view of the world and their current and future place in it are molded. What better way to meet our goal of graduating well-informed, competent individuals than to insist on a broad range of courses at Grades 11 to 13?

That noble sentiment appears to be falling on deaf ears when we tell Grade 12 students that we think they should stretch themselves and their minds by taking seven courses a year. They quite correctly point out that, by taking fewer courses in Grade 12 and 13, they can concentrate on certain subjects. Furthermore, if they are applying to an Ontario university, their admission will be based on their six best O.A.C. results taken over the Grade 12 and 13 years. They argue that we are perhaps hurting their university entrance chances by insisting on a broader selection of courses.

Perhaps the question then boils down to our aim as a school. Is our primary focus to get students into university, or is it the broader mission of exposing students to a wider variety of courses so that future academic pursuits can be made from a position of first hand experience? If we settle for the first option, I am worried that we will be abrogating our responsibilities to our parents and students. While we might then be able to say that everyone who graduated from Ridley was accepted into university, I am not sure that we could say that we had educated them. That, to my mind at least, is more important.

Our current policy of insisting on seven courses at the Grade 12 level, except in the most unusual of cases, is one I am comfortable with. In the worst case scenario, a student's overall average may be marginally lowered because of the workload that such a course load entails. The best case scenario is a student who has been broadly educated in the sciences, maths, social studies and the arts. That seems to me to be worth the effort. (RT)

Students now take courses above their current grade level so as to lighten the load when they reach the grade 13/OAC year.

Physical Education and Health Not Just An Elective

BY DAVID C. WHITTY

Chairman of Physical Education Department

The physical and health education programme at Ridley has changed dramatically over the last 10 years. It has evolved from being a drill and precision movement programme to a multi-dimensional approach that more appropriately suits the needs of today's youth. The philosophy of the Physical and Health Education department needed to reflect the overall changes that were occurring within the student population. No longer was moving telephone poles and boy/man sex talks an adequate approach for a co-educational environment.

Today's programme is a composite one designed to foster the physical, social, emotional and mental development of our students.

All of our classes are co-ed from grades five to the O.A.C. level. The health curriculum is a progressive one from grade five to eleven covering such important areas as; substance abuse, fitness, stress, human sexuality and sports injuries.

Highlights to the physical and health education programme are:

- The Challenge Ropes Course where students are put through a programme geared to improve group dynamics and self awareness. The programme fosters the students' abilities in communication, problem solving, decision making and learning to accept responsibility.
- The Recreation and Leisure Studies Course (Grade 11/12 PHE) is a menu programme where students select their own programme from a variety of activities. It is hoped that many of the selected activities can be carried over well after high school. Examples: golf, curling, cycling, scuba diving, power skating, dance, and sculling, to name only a few.

- The O.A.C. Programme is our prize jewel. This is a tremendous preparatory course for any Ridley student interested in pursuing the Health Sciences while at university. It provides the future physiotherapist, physician, health educator, and athlete with a solid background in the structure and function of the human body.

The nicest compliment is when former students of this course come back and tell us how useful it was for them at university.

We have a very strong department, both in athletic and academic talents. It is to the staff members' credit that the response to these new programmes has been so favourable. With dedicated instructors like Mr. Rasmussen, Mr. Corolis, Miss Swan and Mr. Boucher the future of Ridley Physical and Health Education does indeed look bright. (RT)

Alumni, faculty and students may have the exhilarating experience of the ropes course, here Chris Loat '61 travels down a guide wire.

Ridley Archives Programme - Help Maintain Our History

BY DAVID A. MACLACHLAN
Past President, Ridley College Association

Each year Ridley receives numerous gift items of historical interest to the school. Paul Lewis of the History Department and Housemaster of School House has catalogued and stored these items and from time to time they are displayed in glass cases in the Matthews Library or in the front corridor of School House.

Speaking for himself Paul Lewis says: "Nothing exists that can heighten the interest of current students in their own history like artifacts from the 'old days'. We have a tremendous heritage as an educational institution in the Province of Ontario, and, undoubtedly there is a wealth of Ridley history available to the school when a proper archives is established."

The school looks upon an archives area as a long-term project. At this point in time the Ridley archives has Board approval in principle and space in School House has been allocated. The school is now anxious to receive items for future display. Gifts to the school can be sent to the school at the address below and marked to the attention of Mr. Paul Lewis. A letter describing the historical significance of your gift should also be included. Pictures should be dated and include names. Items on loan are of course also welcome.

Ridley's Newest Department The Development Office

BY ROBERT E. STANLEY
Director of Development

The Development Office was started at Ridley College, in the summer of 1986, during the lead up to our Centennial in 1989. Two offices, the 2nd Century Campaign office and the Ridley College Association office which hitherto had operated separately combined their operations forming the Development Office officially in September 1986.

The Development Office acts as a liaison between the School and members of the Ridley College Association (alumni, past and present parents, staff and friends). The office works closely with the Executive of the Association and Brian Iggulden, the Associate Director of Development acts as the Secretary of this body. The Development Office facilitates and coordinates the numerous events sponsored annually by the Association and its members; to mention only a few — the Toronto Annual Dinner, the Association Weekend, events sponsored by the Women's Guilds of St. Catharines, Toronto and London, Alumni Golf and Squash Tournaments, etc.

Under the policy setting direction of the Development Committee of the Board of Governors, the Development Office implements strategies for fund raising and promotion of the School. The office organizes and manages capital campaigns, the Ridley Fund, Reunion Year Giving and a host of special events, ie. Auctions, Theatre Nights, etc.

Fundamental to the success of the Development Office is the data base, the school record and history of all members of the Ridley College Association, past and present. With approximately 6,000 constituents (alumni, past and present parents, staff and friends) tracking and keeping our records current, from the cradle to the grave, is a demanding exercise, particularly keeping track of young alumni as they move through university and their early careers.

"keeping our records current, from the cradle to the grave, is a demanding exercise"

To keep members of the Ridley College Association in touch with the School and up to date on the most recent happenings, the Development Office publishes three Tigers a year, a Donor Recognition Report, and three Tiger Cub newsletters. To commemorate our Centennial the Development Office had the first Alumni Directory published, listing all living alumni, alphabetically, geographically and by graduating year. We intend to update this publication at regular intervals in the future. Contact is also maintained between the Ridley family and the School by annual solicitations and telethons in support of the Ridley Fund. In addition, invitations and announcements are sent out highlighting upcoming events and important changes at the School.

The life blood of the Ridley Development Office is volunteers. Over 400 people work in some capacity as Ridley volunteers; Class Agents, Grade Agents and Associates, Committee Members, Branch Chairmen, Members of the three Women's Guilds, etc. Ridley is deeply indebted to these people for their time and effort spent on behalf of the School. Without this special group of people and their dedication the Ridley Development office could not carry out its important mandate.

Today the Development Office has three development officers; Brian Iggulden '67, Derek Fraser '79 and Bob Stanley '47. Support staff consist of Mary Bates and Diana Taylor, secretaries, and Ruth Lauzon the data base operator. Presently the office is located behind Deans House in the old 'Pest House'. In the spring of 1991, we are moving our offices to the 3rd floor of School House. When you are at the School, please drop by and see us in our new home, anytime after April 1st. (RT)

RIDLEY PROFILES

BY GERALD S. SHANTZ,
Chaplain

William Wallace Judd, O.R. '34
BA, MA, PhD

"A complete listing of Dr. Judd's publications would almost fill an edition of Tiger!"

To the casual observer Ontario appears as an immense territory, stretching from west of the Great Lakes to the St. Lawrence, and from Hudson Bay to the southernmost tip of Lake Erie. The naturalist sees more than this vastness: he is aware of the province's great diversity in flora and fauna, and in geology and topography; he sees the province divided into zones and regions, each with its own special natural traits. Over the years some areas, and their special attractions, have become widely known to naturalists, amateur and professional alike.

One of the contributing factors to this "awareness" is the vast amount of work and research done in this field by Dr. W.W. Judd, an eminent Ridleyian whose profile we feature in this Ridley Tiger.

Dr. Judd embarked on the road to excellence early enough: he won the diligence prize at Ridley in 1934. He received his BA in Biology from McMaster University in 1938 and immediately became a lecturer in the subject at the University of Western Ontario. After earning both Masters and Doctoral degrees from the University of Toronto, Dr. Judd became Assistant Professor of Zoology at McMaster, a post he held from 1946 to 1950.

It is however, at the University of Western Ontario that Professor Judd has spent a major part of his distinguished career.

In September 1950, Dr. Judd went to Western as an Associate Professor of Zoology. He retired as Professor in 1982 after 31 years of service to that institution. Today, the Western Catalogue lists him as Professor Emeritus/Zoology.

A complete listing of Dr. Judd's publications would almost fill an edition of Tiger! His books, articles, learned papers and periodicals are well known by many in the field of the physical sciences. In 1975 he published one of his most delightful books Vignettes of Nature in Southern Ontario, thirty-five articles on a wide range of nature's creatures. As recently as 1984 he published a Diary of William W. Judd, Byron Bog, London, Ontario 1967-80. One of his most popular and extremely useful books was published in 1964 for the Federation of Ontario Naturalists by the University of Toronto Press: A Naturalists' Guide to Ontario. As a guide to Ontario, designed specifically for naturalists, the book has never been surpassed. The combination of scientific accuracy and practical information have made it an invaluable part of the naturalists' field equipment. It has over the years helped to encourage a wider appreciation of natural history in Ontario.

It is a distinct pleasure for the Ridley Tiger to honour Professor Judd at this time, a gentleman who, for over 40 years as scientist, scholar, and hardly least, as a great teacher, has left his mark and influence on many. Truly one of Ridley's great hearts! (RT)

THE RIDLEY FUND

Help Make A Difference!

BY BRIAN A. IGGULDEN '67,
Associate Director of Development

We need you to make a difference! For 25 years Ridleians have contributed to the excellence of their school through support of the Annual Giving campaign.

At the time of writing the Ridley Fund is running behind last year and is in danger of missing its target of $350,000.

Last year the Ridley Fund raised almost $360,000. Recognizing special reunion year circumstances which boosted last year's total, and factoring in a difficult economy, the Fund Steering Committee set a lower goal than last year's final total. We feel $350,000 is still achievable but we need the support of all interested Ridleians.

Your unrestricted gift to the Ridley Fund will make a difference. Whether great or modest, each gift influences the quality of the programmes at Ridley. Academic supplies, faculty salaries, athletic equipment, facility maintenance, bursary assistance, the chapel — all benefit through gifts to annual giving which is the Ridley Fund.

This fund helps establish and maintain the excellence that makes Ridley unique and different.

If you are a regular supporter please send your gift or pledge today. If you have not been a regular supporter, please consider becoming one this year. (RT)

Do You Know The Different Types of Bequests?

BY ROBERT E. STANLEY,
Director of Development

A bequest is a gift of any amount or form made outright to an institution in a donor's will. Charitable bequests may be designed when a new will is executed, or added to an existing will through a codicil. The bequest can be identified by stating a dollar amount, a percentage of the gross or residuary estate, designating specific articles of property or naming Ridley a residual beneficiary to realize its gift after the provisions in the will have been carried out.

A charitable gift by bequest can provide limited (20%) tax relief on the income of the deceased in the year of his/her death.

Types of Bequests

Terms of bequests may vary, depending on the time or manner in which they will take effect. Four possible forms of bequests are discussed below.

- A specific bequest is usually a stated dollar amount or percentage of the estate. It may be in the form of cash, securities, real estate, tangible personal property (art work, antiques, or jewelry) or any other type of property such as life insurance or annuities. A residuary bequest names the institution as the residuary legatee, to receive the remainder of the estate after specific legacies have been fulfilled.
- A contingent bequest takes effect only if all primary beneficiaries named in the will have died before settlement. Declaring Ridley, or any other charitable institution, a contingent beneficiary can avoid costly litigations or prevent the property from going to the state for lack of heirs.

- A testamentary trust designates that part or all of the estate is to be left in some form of trust with corporate or individual trustees, with income and/or principal to be paid to Ridley under the specific terms of the trust.

A bequest of any type may be used for any number of purposes, depending on the donor's wishes. Uses for the gift are almost limitless — and may include any of the following:

- Designated for general use by the school
- Assigned to the endowment fund with income restricted to general use of the institution
- Designed to endow a room, building or other specific purpose
- Provide for construction of a new facility or purchase of equipment
- To establish a named endowment fund to honor an individual in perpetuity

Gifts by bequest are an important source of endowment funds for the school. These gifts are especially important as they allow Ridley to plan, with a measure of security, for the future.

If you would like more information about the Ridley Bequest Programme, please write or call the Director of Development at the school. All enquiries are confidential and there is no obligation. (RT)

Middle School What Is It?

iddle School 1990 opened bigger and better than ever before. It is gratifying to see that we are establishing a broad base in the lower grades (ie. Grades 5 & 6) and attracting more girls at an earlier level:

Gr. 5	1	-	7	2	10

TOTAL 18 1 47 19 85

+ = Attrition: 8

* = Girls: 22.3%

It is also gratifying to note the lowering of the attrition rate; this we attribute to more selective entrance procedures and a revitalized programme in the junior grades.

Middle School has changed in more than name; we present a new approach to the learning process by accepting that our students are 'Middle-Schoolers' — neither fish nor fowl, but in the middle of changes in all aspects of their lives. They seek security, yet look for independence; they can be amazingly mature one moment, and incredibly infantile the next.

Aims of the Middle School

1. To provide an environment where the child, not the programme, is most important and where there is the opportunity to succeed.
2. To provide a feeling of safety and security in a home base with caring adults.
3. To provide a programme for and adapted to the needs of early adolescents and including the widest possible range of intellectual, social and physical experience.
4. To provide opportunity for the exploration and development of skills.
5. To place an emphasis on guidance and human relations and the development of mental processes and attitudes for constructive citizenship and to provide a structured advisory programme run by concerned adults.
6. To provide understanding staff members who are tolerant, flexible, alert, and have energy, regard for adolescents, and a sense of humour.
7. To provide a variety of learning environments and activities.
8. To provide a climate which enables students to develop abilities, find facts, weigh evidence, draw conclusions, determine values and open their minds to new information.
9. To provide an out-of-building programme involving students in the community.
10. To provide an exploratory programme allowing greater variety in the creative activities - art, music, language, leisure activities - all without pressure.
11. To provide frequent opportunities for the release of energy.
12. To form varied groupings based not only on cognitive but also on physical, social, and emotional criteria.

"Middle School has changed in more than name"

To these ends we now offer a homeroom-based programme in Grades 5 through 7, each grade becoming a semi-autonomous community in its own right, with a team of teachers working together with common goals both within and without the classroom, challenging the students to develop their skills and interests, to test their strengths as leaders and organizers, and to explore successfully as many fields of endeavour as they can.

In an attempt to answer some of these needs and desires and in an attempt to provide unique, educational experiences outside the classroom, a new and challenging Outdoor Education programme is now offered most weekends. The programme is led by Ms. Karen-Dawn Butt, a graduate in Physical Education from Queen's University and a current member of the Recreation and Leisure Studies programme at Brock University. The programme offers the middle school students an opportunity to develop and enhance their leadership and educational skills by increasing their awareness and knowledge of the environment, outdoor recreation, survival skills, and self confidence. The programme focuses on four basic areas:

- personal relationships
- trust
- team work
- leadership skills

These four skills are first developed and later enhanced throughout the year in such activities as hiking, orienteering, first aid, winter sports, camping, campcraft and canoeing.

Summer 1990 saw major refurbishment of the teaching block and library area primarily as a result of the underpinning necessary for the whole wing. All classrooms were repainted, new lights and carpeting were installed, presenting a far more impressive first impression. It is interesting to note how well the students have reacted to the refurbishing, showing care and concern.

Middle School is jumping; feel free to visit at any time. We cannot guarantee a regular school day for your visit, but we can promise an interesting one! (RT)

ASSOCIATION BRANCH MEETINGS

Ottawa, Ontario and Montreal, Quebec

The Ottawa Valley Branch of the Ridley College Association held its annual meeting at the Royal Ottawa Golf Club on Wednesday, February 6th, 1991. The Headmaster, Doug Campbell presented, for the first time, the new video on Ridley that the Admissions Department has produced. The 10 minute production was warmly received by the 25 members of the Association that were in attendance.

All of us who were present would like to thank Michael Venables for organizing another very pleasant evening at the Royal Ottawa Golf Club.

Following the Ottawa reception the Campbells and the Stanleys travelled to Montreal for the annual Quebec Branch Meeting which was held at the Montreal Racket Club.

The video mentioned above was again well received by the 30 viewers who attended this lively reception. The recent graduates at university in the area were particularly enthusiastic about seeing their friends and former teachers on celluloid.

On behalf of all those who attended a big thank-you to Jamie McIntyre for organizing another fun evening at the Montreal Racket Club.

At the Royal Ottawa Golf Club, L-R: David Finn '87, Ken Venables '34, Ted Finn, a Past Parent and Branch Chairman, Mike Venables '71.

In Montreal, recent graduates joined Jamie McIntyre '66, Branch Chairman for a festive evening. L-R: D.J. Williams '88, Angela Zuliani '88, James Brown '87 and David Wiley '88.

Director, Antonio Tibaldi (crouched in centre) waits for a set-up during filming.

Hollywood Comes To Ridley

During the week of February 16-23, 1991, Ridley was chosen as the location of a feature film that is in production. On My Own, is an official co-production involving Canada, Italy and Australia. The film stars Australian actress Judy Davis (Passage to India & My Brilliant Career), already in Toronto shooting David Cronenberg's Naked Lunch. Co-starring is Matthew Ferguson, Toronto stage actor and 1990 Dora winner for Geometry in Venice.

On My Own tells the story of a mother's unexpected visit to her son at his boarding school, and the slow unravelling of their enigmatic relationship. The project is a feature debut for director Antonio Tibaldi, who co-wrote the script with John Frizzell (A Winter Tan) and Gill Dennis.

The film is expected to be released internationally and to be out in September. Ridley hopes to have a special event with the Canadian debut.

Richard Bradley Returns

Certainly one of the highlights for the school in the month of February was the return to Ridley of Mr. Richard A. Bradley and his wife Mary. Their coming was at the behest of the History Department and was made possible through the generosity of the Gould Endowment. Aside from speaking to students and faculty, I am sure that the highlight for him was the singing of the school hymn in chapel on the morning before he spoke. It was a moving moment.

Richard spoke to the whole school on Monday, congratulating the students on the fine Mikado performance and reminding them of the uniqueness of the school motto. He then spoke to the Western Civilizations classes on some aspects of the French Revolution, one of his own historical loves, and, in the evening, he addressed a Ridley Forum on the struggle between freedom and order, a topic which persists in relevancy throughout history and even at a school such as ours. The audience was primarily the friends of the seventies but the message was quite current. The Bradleys appreciated being back at the school again as much as we appreciated having the opportunity to 'remember the days'.

Paul E. Lewis,
Housemaster of School House

WE APOLOGIZE

The Development Office has recently had some very legitimate complaints from alumni about people who have misused the Ridley Centennial Alumni Directory for commercial purposes.

We apologize to anyone who has been bothered by these solicitations. In all cases, the Development Office has written to the offenders and pointed out that they are in violation of a copyright regulation and we have asked them to cease and desist in this illegal use of the Ridley Centennial Alumni Directory. We would appreciate hearing from any alumni who have been bothered by such solicitations. Please phone or write the Ridley Development Office at P.O. Letters To The Editor

Editor:

I would like to comment on 'A Ridley record' published in the Fall 1990 issue of Tiger. Brian Love's '71 triplets were not Ridley's first. Stuart Jarvis '10 had triplets, Geoff, Greg and Blair; two identical and one fraternal. The triplets were born in the early 20's. However, none of Stuart Jarvis' six children (one girl, five boys) attended Ridley.

Sincerely,
Adam H. Griffith '35

Editor:

The article 'Farewell To A Grand Old Elm,' in the fall '90 issue was great.

But, why must you perpetuate the print medium's misuse of the apostrophe? You wrote, "... under-way by the 1950's." The 1950s is plural, not possessive. Surely, you would not write "the nineteen fifties" as "the nineteen fiftie's."

A small point, but I expect correct punctuation from Ridleians who should write in a correct manner.

The new format of Ridley Tiger is impressive. Keep up the good work.

Respectfully,
Dennis H. Martin '54
